Too many medications? Older adults' perspectives on deprescribing

Sarah Vordenberg, PharmD, MPH

Clinical Associate Professor

College of Pharmacy, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, MI 48109

- Inappropriate use of medications, also called polypharmacy, is a significant issue for many older adults.
- Deprescribing occurs when patients and healthcare professionals work together to thoughtfully stop unnecessary medications.
- It is important to consider the preferences of older adults when making deprescribing decisions.
