

Title: Firmenich's quest towards sustainable muguet molecules

The Firmenich perfumery palette is composed of complementary natural and synthetic ingredients for which the need for a sustainable profile has been gathering both in importance and momentum over the past few years. A key towards sustainable synthetic ingredients is the application of green chemistry principles within their production processes, which we will illustrate herein for innovative muguet molecule examples.