

VIRTUAL WEBINAR

Access, Ability & the Future of Pharmacy

Presented by Dedicated Programs and Assessments, College of Pharmacy

March 24, 2026 | 10 - 11 a.m.

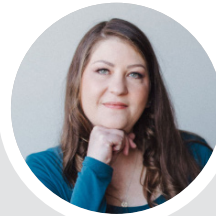

More than 20% of Americans live with a disability, yet fewer than 1% of pharmacists formally declare a disability. Join us for a timely conversation on why disability inclusion matters and how supporting pharmacists with disabilities strengthens patient care and the profession. Featuring speakers with both professional expertise and lived experience.

Lisa Meeks, PhD
Professor of Medical Education, University of Illinois College of Medicine

As founder of the Docs with Disabilities Initiative, Dr. Meeks has driven policy and practice advancements that reshape health professions education.

Jennifer Williams, PharmD, BCPS
Clinical Pharmacist, Mercy Medical Center

Dr. Williams regularly seeks opportunities to engage in inclusion education as a person with disabilities herself.

Laura Evelyn Nellen, PharmD
Specialty Pharmacist, Accredo Specialty Pharmacy

Living with Spinal Muscular Atrophy Type III, Dr. Nellen offers unique insights into healthcare accessibility as both a clinician and a person with physical disabilities.
